MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Dr. Daniel Elmer Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the agricultural department, has held that office since 1884, and has been in that department of the government since 1879.

L. S. Elmer, assistant chief clerk of the post office department, is known as an authority on postal laws and regulations both of this country and of foreign countries. He compiled the postal manual, which enables clerks and business men to learn quickly the rates of postage on all articles. It is in concise form and gives briefly the salient points of the postal laws. Mr. Elmer has been in the service about 20 years.

Hugh McLaughlin, the veteran democratic leader of Brooklyn, has been suffering from insomnia, so he called in a doctor. "You are smoking too much," said the medical man after making an examination, and he began to write a prescription, doubtless thinking that Mr. McLaughlin was too old to drop a long-established habit. "Will stopping tobacco have the same effect as this medicine you prescribe?" asked the old gentleman and on receiving an affirmative answer he said: "Then you may keep your prescription. I will keep my word, though up to that time he had both smoked and chewed the weed for many years."

Secretary Shaw went over to the treasury department one morning accompanied by a friend from Iowa. While the pair were seated in Mr. Shaw's private office the secretary found a letter which particularly interested him. Leaning back in his chair, he put one foot on the corner of his desk. In half a minute a man dashed in, revolver in hand, and, covering the visitor, said: "Is this man trying to rob you, Mr. Shaw?" "No, no," shouted the secretary. "He is my friend." After some further excitement it developed that when he put his foot on the desk Mr. Shaw had pressed a button that calls a watchman. The man came in a hurry, just as he had been ordered to do.

President Roosevelt has decided to bid lighted cigars out of the white house and with the view of making known his desires regarding the matter has hung over a mantel in the public reception room the familiar sign: "No Smoking Allowed." Some time ago Arthur Simmons, the colored doorkeeper who has been at the white house for many years, was made smoke inspector, but he found that his efforts to put a stop to the nuisance provoked a good deal of talk among the offenders. Mr. Simmons is of a pious turn and naturally that sort of talk shocked him exceedingly. Therefore he begged to be relieved from the task and so Mr. Roosevelt has hung up the sign.

GOOD WILL.

Christmas a Type of What Every Other Day in the Whole Year Should Be.

"Good will, good will to men." It is only another name for the Christ, the "God with us." Just so far as we have it, and no farther, do we abide in Him and He in us. The heart that is too small to take in its suffering fellow creatures is too small for manger or cradle for an infant Christ.

"Good will to men," in so far as we are concerned means our uttermost to make a new comfort in the lives of those who yet lack something that loving kindness could bestow.

Christ came to bring good will to men. The matter was such joyful import in Heaven that the faces of the angels of God shone out through the midnight, and their songs reached mortal ears.

Is that good will passing from His heart to yours to bless the world? If not, could there be a better time to open your hearts that His blessings may flow through them to needy souls and bodies? Now is the time, when His name is on every lip, His praise echoed in every song.

Christmas is a time of family reunion. It is a good time for children to come home, to bring the gifts that they have prepared, to receive from the best what they too have brought. Wouldn't it be a wonderful Christmas if we could only all get together with time to open for each other's gaze the treasures of the last dozen years? What heart histories we should hear! What stories of success would make us glad! What tales of defeat and failure would sadden! What joys some of us could bring, and through what depths of anguish many of us have passed!

If one of the best things of Christmas is the love that longs to give, we need make no limit to the holy Christmas day. It can go on, and on so long as the love keeps tender and fresh and strong. We can make the daily life a constant everyday giving by putting the love and good will into every act.

This is what He did whose life began in the manger. The great and glorious giving of the death on Calvary was but a culmination of a giving of Himself and His love all through His earlier years.

For us there may be waiting no such test as shows the love that "lays down life for a friend," but the ceaseless, gracious giving of unstinted love is ours for Christmas day and all days, and most of all just for to-day.

Already in Practice.

"Madam, are you a woman suffragist?"

"No, sir; I haven't time to be."

"Haven't time? Well, if you had the privilege of voting, whom would you support?"

"The same man I have supported for the last ten years—my husband."

"Fit-Bits."

A Clear Case of It.

"Say, pa, what's just retribution?"

"It's something that happened to a man I read about the other day. He was tossing somebody else's baby up in the air trying to find out whether he could hit the ceiling with it and not knock the plaster loose, and sprained his back so that he'll never be able to walk again."

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Answered.

Mrs. McCall—For goodness sake! You don't really pay your servant girl five dollars a week?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Yes.

Mrs. McCall—My! What makes you pay her that much?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—She does.—Philadelphia Press.
